

Ladd Arboretum Oaktober Festival

Saturday, October 6, 2018

1:00 - 4:00 pm

2024 McCormick Boulevard

Celebrate Oak Awareness Month at Evanston's fourth annual Oaktober Festival. Join a tree walk, learn about oaks and other native plants, talk with Evanston's city forester—and help plant dozens of new wildflowers and grasses!

The planting is part of the City of Evanston's North Shore Channel Habitat Project, a community collaboration working to enhance bird habitat at several sites along the channel.

If you want to help plant, wear clothes you don't mind getting dirty and bring gloves and a trowel if you can. (We'll have some, too.)

Free. All ages welcome. No registration required.
Bike racks next to Ecology Center, parking across street.

Evanston's Oaktober Festival is organized by the City of Evanston North Shore Channel Habitat Project in collaboration with Natural Habitat Evanston, Evanston TreeKeepers, and the Ecology Center staff. We are grateful to the National Fish & Wildlife Foundation's Chi-Cal Rivers Fund for supporting the North Shore Channel Habitat Project—and to all the volunteers who are making the vision a reality.
